Have you got your tickets for A Christmas Carol?

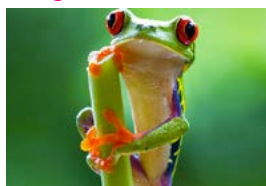

It's time to get your Christmas on! Tickets for the Upper School Play are selling like hot cakes. The show promises to be a hysterical festive farce, as Years 10, 11 and the Sixth Form battle to stage their unique version of the Dickens classic – without the help of the Drama Department, who have all mysteriously disappeared to the Bahamas...

Lily wins senior place in National Youth String Orchestra

Congratulations to Queenswood Music Scholar Lily Harwood (Year 10), who has won a coveted place in the senior section of the National Youth String Orchestra (NYSO). The standard is superb, and the seniors take young players up to the age of 21, so Lily has done extremely well to be selected aged 14.

OQ on the team – Planet Earth II

Are you enjoying the amazing BBC series Planet Earth II on Sunday evening? The opening episode was the most watched natural history show for 15 years and one of our OQs is on the team. OQ Charlotte Bostock (2009 leaver) is a Researcher on the series, working on Episodes 3 (Jungles) and 5 (Cities).

Queenswood Badminton – a weekend of success

Queenswood's Badminton players enjoyed great success on the weekend of 12-13 November, with outstanding performances in the Royal Masonic Invitation Doubles and the Herts School Singles Championships.

Spectacular fireworks display on Trew Lawn

We are extremely grateful to the Queenswood Parents Association for organising a truly awe-inspiring pyrotechnic display on Trew Lawn on Sunday 13 November. The brilliant sequences were 'choreographed' to a range of iconic music tracks, culminating in the school song as a giant purple 'Q' burned in the night sky.
